THE SUPERINTENDENTS' VISIT TO CLASS ROOM DISCUSSED BY HORN

P. W. Horn, Superintendent of Houston Schools Addressed
County and City Superintendents Thursday Afternoon.

POINTLESS VISITING IS BUT WASTING TIME

"The Superintendent's Visit to the Class Room" was the subject of a talk made to State and County principals here for the thirtieth annual convention by P. W. Horn of Houston, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Horn is City superintendent of the Houston schools—speaking on this subject, Mr. Horn said in part:

The duties of the superintendent vary in detail at the size of the town varies in size of 20,000 inhabitants or less, he probably has the opportunity to do his most effective work when he visits the class room when school work is actually in progress.

In order that he be effective, it is necessary that these visits have a specific purpose. Pointless visiting is time wasted.

There are two specific purposes for which a superintendent may profitably visit the class room. One of these is to see, and the other is to help.

He should know what to look for some of the things that are worth observing are the following:

Number of pupils present Number due Number of seatings Number of room? Liquid ventilation? Subject of ventilation? Conduct of class not in reiteration? Quality of work of pupils in reiteration? General order? Interest shown? Manners of teachers? General atmosphere of the school?

If it is necessary for the visitor to be able to discriminate between the important things and the trivial things, a superintendent, when at the end of his visit, is able merely to report that John whispered twice to James, or that William looked out of the window, has wasted time.

The second object of the visit should be to help. It makes no difference what the superintendent sees, unless he does something to help.

In order that he help it is necessary that he communicate at least a part of what he sees. The superintendent should be frank with the teacher. If he sees anything good he should tell them about it for the sake of encouragement. If he sees anything that needs to be remedied, he should communicate this fact with the suggestion of means to remedy this difficulty.

There are at least four ways by which he can communicate with the teacher—by conversation at the time. However, nothing should be said in the heat of the pupils which will even seem to distract the teacher.

By conversation later in the superintendent's office or elsewhere.

In general talks at meetings. However, nothing that could even be construed as reflecting unpleasantly on a specific teacher's work should be presented in this manner.

By formal letter.

Which is the best of these plans? It depends altogether upon the individual case.

The superintendent's attitude during the visit should always be friendly and not critical. It should have as little of formality as is practicable.

FIGHTING AROUND LOOS STILL SUBJECT OF DESCRIPTIVE REPORTS

ONE OF THE MOST ANIMATED OF SUCH DESCRIPTIVE REPORTS IS FROM THE PEN OF BERNHARDT KELLERMAN, A NOTED AUTHOR

As rapidly as invasions and sieges whereas the lesson taught to this war is that the lives of soldiers should be restricted only to the most modest, the most elastic, and most light combat methods—the very pick of a nation's best talent. The English should learn much from their old superiority to take charge of communications.

Following with admirable courage the English troops came forward to the attack. They were going, note, in decorations, their carried out with blind courage that their senior commander ordered, and this is a terrible mistake, one line and the telephone. Their behavior was splendid, but the more pitiable was the break down of their attack.

The eight-tank column before they had advanced ten yards, got into an intact file of rifle machine guns and artillery, all at the call of the telephone. Our tanks were waiting at a distance, off to the right, to the left, and to the rear. Finally, the British attacked, evidently as if from nowhere, sending a cloud of gas and smoke masks. They came on in their line and storming column. The first line of the attack was quickly shot down by the hall of rifle and machine gun bullets that rained upon them from the shattered German trenches, the hand grenades especially wrought terrible havoc, some of them cutting down six or eight men. The dead and wounded soon lay like a well before the German position. The second and third lines of English suffered the same fate. It was estimated that the number of British killed before this German division alone reached 3,000 to 3,500.

The fourth line of attackers, however, succeeded in overrunning the decimated front line of Germans who stood by their guns to the very last, those of them who had not fallen were made prisoners. Not one of them returned to tell what happened in this terrific fighting. On the neighboring front, too, the British succeeded in breaking the German first position, and gained here from 500 to 2,000 yards of ground. At the second German position, where their reserves were in waiting, the attack was completely checked. The fighting lost something of its fierceness as the afternoon waned, and September 22 ended with hand-to-hand encounters and hand grenade attacks at various points along the front. The Germans made an attack during the night and regained a part of the lost ground.

An enormous number of dead lay before our trenches. The enemy's losses for the two days before this carnage alone amounted to a low estimate of 7,500 men. The lesson learned from the fighting here is that it is not a sport in the hands of a dozen privileged fighters.

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

IF YOUR BACK HURTS OR BLADDER BROTHERS, DRINK LOTS OF WATER.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and use up your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract.

Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your house clean by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinary waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 300 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water, you can't drink too much, also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast every morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithium, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate cleared kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, so keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.
